

October 26th, 2022

Dear Colleagues,

As the chair of the congress and on the behalf of the organizing committee, I am writing to invite you to participate the 19th Asian Chemical Congress (ACC 2023), which will be held in İstanbul, Türkiye, on July 9-14, 2023. The congress website has already been launched, which you may visit it from the following link, <https://acc2023.org/>. Many reputable high-impact scientists from different countries have already accepted to give plenary, keynote or invited talks in the congress.

The Asian Chemical Congress (ACC) is overseen by the Federation of Asian Chemical Societies (FACS, <https://www.facs.website/>), and organized by one of the member societies every other year. As the Turkish Chemical Society, we are going to host the congress in 2023. It is the largest and widely participated congress in the greater Asia region. Please visit the following link for the last ACCs, <https://www.facs.website/asiachem-congress>.

Istanbul is an ancient city with its museums, historic streets, mosques, churches, synagogues providing a blend of historic cultures of Hellenic, Roman, Byzantine and Ottoman. Besides, Istanbul is not only the largest city in Türkiye, but also it is one of the most important, economic, financial and trade centers. In addition to these unique features, the city is located on a beautiful landscape, on two sides of the Bosphorus dividing two continentals (Europe and Asia), which makes it one of the unique destinations to visit.

We kindly request you to announce and promote the 19th ACC to your members. We also kindly request you to publish the congress link and the attached congress flyer on your websites.

We look forward to organizing this important meeting in this unique city and hosting you and your members.

Best regards,

Prof. Dr. Mustafa Çulha
Congress Chair
